SELECTED CONSULTANCY ASSIGNMENTS:

A. Conflict resolution

2010 to date. More than 150 conflict resolution assignments in private and public sector organisations and in culturally mixed housing estates in Denmark. The organisations include e.g., the police, various universities, the Parliament, schools, psychiatric wards, hospitals, unions, and NGOs. Methods and tools used include conflict analysis, mediation (approx. 80), conflict coaching, training, group processes, supervision, and formulation of conflict resolution policies and codes of conduct. Example:

At University of Copenhagen, conflicts between groups of employees on different levels and between employees and managers affected a large department's outcomes. A holistic approach was taken to resolve the multi-faceted conflicts. Initially, key stakeholders were identified, interviews disclosing their emotional state, damaged relations and issue-based disagreements were held and followed by an engaging design process. The design included mediation between selected employees and managers, coaching of managers, group mediations, dialogue workshops, training of managers and employees in conflict resolution, establishing conflict culture change agents and a conflict resolution code of conduct for the department. Levels of conflict were substantially reduced.

2017 to date. Training public sector and NGO managers and employees in a) group mediation, b) conflict coaching including dealing with their own conflicts, understanding conflicts, communication and conflict coaching techniques and implementing an efficient culture of conflict resolution in their organisations. Six Danish Centre for Conflict Resolution's 12-days courses for approximately a total of 100 participants.

2019 to date. Restorative justice focused mediations for the Danish Police (so called “conflict councils”) in cases of violence, rape, traffic incidents, neighbour complaint, divorces and more.

Conflict resolution abroad include:

2020-21. Training Kenyan political party representatives in dialogue and conflict resolution in order to enhance cooperation in and between the political parties. The parties have a history of influencing pre- and post- election violence and the project aims at contributing to avoiding this mechanism in the next elections. Client: The Centre for Multiparty Democracy Kenya and Conducive Space for Peace.

2013-21. Training government officials, politicians and NGO staff from three continents in conflict transformation including conflict analysis, mediation, group conflict resolution facilitation and deep democracy. One annual or biannual two to three weeks course held in Nepal, Uganda and Denmark.

Client: Danida Fellowship Centre.

2017. Training Palestinian Red Cross volunteers in conflict resolution focusing on conflicts with refugees and Israeli authorities as well as conflicts within their teams. Client: Red Cross.

2016-18. Capacity building Ukrainian Red Cross (RC) on conflict resolution. This included: A) Training RC volunteers in conflict resolution related to conflicts with internally displaced people, locals as well as conflicts within the teams. B) Identification, training and supervision of local experts and RC staff in order to take over future training of RC volunteers. C) Development of training materials and guidelines. The training is still continuing. Client: Red Cross.

2015-17. Training staff in conflict resolution and diversity. Client: Doctors Without Borders.

2015. Lecturing at Danish Dialogue Institute (DEDI) in Egypt on dialogue and conflict resolution.

2007-13. Training election observers and aid relief workers in conflict resolution. Client: Danida.
